

PG&E's Paid Family Leave & Disability Benefits

Utility IBEW and SEIU--represented employees

2017 and 2018 Paid Family Leave and Medical /Disability Benefits Overview

PG&E's Paid Family Leave wage continuation benefits will be a supplement to PG&E's Voluntary Disability & Paid Family Leave Benefit Plan (VP) benefits only. For qualifying events beginning on or after January 1, 2018, employees must be covered under the PG&E VP to be eligible for wage continuation benefits.

Employees who opt-out of VP coverage will remain eligible for the California State Plan benefits. PG&E pays the full cost of supplemental wage continuation benefits. You pay for the cost of coverage for the Voluntary Plan through payroll deductions (same cost as State Plan).

PG&E PFL Wage Continuation provides supplemental income replacement up to 100%* (pre-tax) of your basic wage rate (the wage as of the date prior to your first date of leave) for eligible employees who take approved time away from work to care for a seriously ill family member or to bond with a new child. Wage continuation supplements the weekly Voluntary Plan benefits. You may be eligible for up to eight (8) weeks of PFL wage continuation benefits/leave.

Medical Leave and Voluntary Disability Insurance—review details in the chart on page 2 and in the medical leave section starting on page 6.

Long-Term Disability benefit provides you with income replacement if you become disabled because of an accident or a long-term illness and you are unable to work. The benefit under the new LTD Plan IV, when combined with certain other sources of income that may be payable after the disability occurs, will be equal to 70% of your basic monthly pay.

Paid Family Leave

Who is eligible?

- If you are an IBEW- or SEIU-represented employee, you become eligible under the PFL policy upon completion of one day of employment.
- The PFL policy applies to eligible employees who have a new qualifying event on or after January 1, 2018.
 - Time off to bond with your new child must be taken within the first year of the child's birth, adoption or foster care placement.
 - If you are an eligible employee and did not exhaust your six (6) weeks of CA PFL Insurance benefits for a 2017 qualifying bonding leave event and you have time available under the Family and Medical Leave Act (FMLA), California Family Rights Act (CFRA), or Company leave, you may be eligible to receive PFL Wage Continuation benefits for qualifying bonding events in 2018. You are not eligible for the VPFL benefits with respect to the 2017 qualifying bonding leave event.
- If you are a Hiring Hall, temporary or intermittent employee who has not attained regular status, you are eligible for Voluntary PFL benefits (55% benefit) and are not eligible for PG&E PFL wage continuation benefits/leave or PG&E's company leaves. VPFL is a wage replacement benefit only; you may be eligible for a leave of absence under the FMLA, CFRA, or other similar state or local leave law.

How it works

- If you will be absent to care for a family member with a Serious Health Condition or to bond with your new child within the first (1st) year of the child's birth, adoption or foster care placement, you must apply for Paid Family Leave by contacting the leave and disability administrator, Sedgwick.
- For absences in which you are also eligible and qualify under the FMLA, CFRA, Company Child Care/Bonding leave or any other similar or local leave law, PFL runs concurrent with and does not extend the maximum period available. See www.mypgebenefits.com for more information on qualifying reasons to take leave under each leave type.

Notice and Claim processing

- You must provide 30 days advance notice for a planned PFL leave period—one call is needed for VPFL, PG&E PFL wage continuation and any other leave for which you may be eligible and qualified.
- For unforeseeable events, you need to provide notification as soon as the need for leave is known.
- Complete medical certification (for family care events) or documentation to support your bonding leave is required to be submitted to the leave and disability administrator, within the timeframe specified.
- Once complete documentation is received, a decision will be made within 2 business days to determine your eligibility for VPFL and Wage Continuation benefit payments and leave.
- You're required to take leave under the FMLA and CFRA at the same time you are receiving PFL benefits. FMLA, CFRA, other local state/local leave laws or company leave, VPFL and wage continuation benefits all run concurrently with and do not extend leave under federal, state, and local leave laws or company leave policies.
- After your PFL leave period, your family care or bonding leave may be extended under the FMLA, CFRA or Company Child Care leave, if you are eligible.
- If you are a CA employee and you opt out of the VP, you are not eligible for the wage continuation benefits under the PFL policy.
 - You will continue to follow the leave of absence process and apply for the company child care/bonding leave and leaves provided under the FMLA, CFRA, PDL or local leaves, if eligible. Information about leaves of absence you may be eligible for can be found here.

- You will need to apply for CA PFL through the Employment Development Department (EDD). Payments for CA PFL benefits will be made directly by the EDD and via a debit card.

Benefits and Payments

- There is no waiting period required for VPFL and PG&E PFL wage continuation benefits.
- VPFL and PFL wage continuation benefit payments will be made according to your normal pay cycle and the method of payment you've elected through PG&E's payroll department (i.e. direct deposit or live check).
- VPFL benefit payments will be issued on a separate paycheck from any other pay type and issued according to your current pay designation (direct deposit or live paycheck).
- PFL Wage Continuation supplements VPFL, or other similar state benefit, up to an equivalent of 100% of your basic wage rate on the day prior to your first day of family or bonding leave.
 - There is no cap to the 60% VPFL or 100% PFL wage continuation benefits.
 - VPFL is federally taxable and wage continuation benefits are taxable.
- If you are an intern, hiring hall, temporary or intermittent employee who has not attained regular status, you are eligible for a weekly VPFL benefit of 55%.
- For each day of an eligible, full-time, continuous PFL period due to caring for a family member with a serious health condition or bonding with a new child which is less than a full week, the amount of daily PFL benefit payable will be one-seventh (1/7) of the amount of the weekly benefit.
- You may be eligible to receive PFL benefits on an intermittent basis for absences in which you are suffering a wage loss during an eligible PFL benefit period.
 - Amount of PFL wage continuation is reduced by VPFL benefits, and together with VPFL, will not exceed 100% of pre-disability wage rate.
 - There is a wage loss calculation to determine both VPDI and wage continuation benefits, which means partial-day absences are generally counted as full-day absences.
- If you're taking leave for bonding purposes, the minimum PFL benefit period in which PFL wage continuation can be received is 2 weeks. However, on 2 occasions, a leave and PFL benefit period of less than 2 weeks can be taken.

Other Benefits

- When approved for PFL leave/benefits, you continue to receive health care benefits as if you were at work. Payments for these health care premiums costs will be automatically deducted from available wage continuation benefits received.
- If your wage continuation benefits payments are not sufficient to cover the full amount of your benefit premiums, you have the option to request that a portion of certain employee-paid benefit premiums be deducted from your VPDI benefit payments.
- Eligible employees will continue to accrue vacation during periods of PFL leave in accordance with current rules for unpaid leaves of absence (see your respective labor agreement, mypgbenefits.com or the Summary of Benefits Handbook for additional details and limitations for vacation accrual during period of leave).
- While approved to receive VPFL and wage continuation benefit payments, 401(k) contributions and company match will continue at your current designation unless you elect otherwise pursuant to normal 401(k) election procedures.

Medical Leave with Voluntary Plan Disability Insurance

Who is eligible?

- If you are a Utility employee working in California, you are eligible for coverage under the Voluntary Disability and Paid Family Leave Benefit Plan.
- VPDI is a wage replacement benefit only; you may be eligible for a leave of absence under the Family and Medical Leave Act (FMLA)/ California Family Rights Act (CFRA), Pregnancy Disability Leave (PDL) other similar state or local leave law or PG&E's company medical leave.
- Medical Leave:
 - FMLA/ CFRA/PDL:
 - FMLA/ CFRA—You've worked for the company for at least one year and worked at least 1250 hours in the 12 months immediately preceding the leave start date.
 - FMLA/ CFRA—You have not exhausted your FMLA/CFRA entitlement within the 12 months prior to the requested leave date.
 - CFRA and PDL—eligible if you work in California.
 - PDL—Immediately eligible (no service or hours work requirement).
 - Company Medical Leave:
 - Absences must be greater than two weeks. Leave cannot be taken on an intermittent basis or on a reduced schedule.
 - You need to have attained regular status.
 - Hiring Hall employees are not eligible for this leave.
- If your medical leave began in 2017, you remain eligible under State Plan benefits with respect to such leave.

How it works

- If you will be absent due to your own disability (a physical or mental illness or injury, including any illness or injury resulting from pregnancy, childbirth, or a related medical condition) for more than seven (7) consecutive calendar days (waiting period) or any length of time that may be covered under FMLA/CFRA/ PDL, you must apply for medical leave by contacting the leave and disability administrator, Sedgwick.
 - Your call to Sedgwick to report your medical leave will initiate your disability claim and start the VPDI eligibility review process.
- Pregnancy is a covered event and PDL and the VPDI provides benefits to prepare for childbirth and recovery from delivery. Generally, you may begin receiving VPDI benefits up to 4 weeks prior to your expected delivery date to prepare for delivery. For recovery from delivery, you may begin receiving VPDI benefits from the date of birth (regular delivery is covered for 6 weeks; C-section is covered for 8 weeks).
- For absences for which you are also eligible and qualify under the FMLA, CFRA, PDL, company leave policy or any other similar or local leave law, VPDI runs concurrent with and does not extend the maximum period available. See the Summary of Benefits Handbook for more information on qualifying reasons to take leave under each leave type.

Notice and Claim processing

- You must provide 30 days advance notice for a planned medical leave.
- For unforeseeable events, you need to provide notification as soon as the need for leave is known.
- Complete medical certification is required to be submitted to the leave and disability administrator, within the timeframe specified.
- Once your complete documentation is received, a decision will be made within 2 business days to determine eligibility for leave and VPDI benefit payments.
- You are required to take leave under the FMLA, CFRA and PDL at the same time you are receiving VPDI benefits. Medical Leave with Voluntary Plan Disability Insurance, continued

- If you are a CA employee and you opt out of the VP, you will continue to follow the leave of absence process with Sedgwick and apply for CA SDI through the Employment Development Department (EDD). Payments for CA SDI benefits will be made directly by the EDD and via a debit card.

Benefits and Payments

- Sick pay must be used and exhausted prior to being eligible for VPDI benefits.
- Sick pay and VPDI benefit payments will be made according to your normal pay cycle and the method of payment you've elected through PG&E's payroll department (i.e. direct deposit or live check).
 - VPDI benefit payments will be issued on a separate paycheck from any other pay type and issued according to your current pay designation (direct deposit or live paycheck).
- After satisfying the waiting period and exhausting sick pay, VPDI provides a weekly benefit of 60% of your basic wage rate on the day prior to your first day of disability.
 - There is no cap to the 60% VPDI.
 - VPDI not taxable.
 - If you are an intern, hiring hall, temporary or intermittent employee who has not attained regular status, you are eligible for a weekly benefit of 55%.
- For each day you are unable to work during any eligible period of disability which is less than a full week, the amount of daily VPDI benefit will be one-seventh (1/7), of the amount of the weekly benefit.
- If you return to work and are working part-time or intermittently and still suffering a wage loss during an eligible disability benefit period, you may be eligible for VPDI benefits.
 - There is a wage loss calculation to determine both VPDI and wage continuation benefits, which means partial-day absences are generally counted as full-day absences.

Waiting Period

There is a seven consecutive calendar day waiting period to be eligible for VPDI benefits.

- Sick pay will be used during the waiting period.
- Once sick pay is exhausted, you can choose to use vacation pay, floating holidays or in- lieu of days or be unpaid during the waiting period.

If no sick pay is available and if approved for VPDI, benefits will begin on the earliest of:

1. The 8th consecutive calendar day of disability;
2. The 1st day of hospital confinement; or
3. The 1st day of treatment in a hospital surgical unit or a surgical clinic, provided you're disabled for a period of at least 8 days as a result of such treatment.

Other Benefits

- While approved for medical leave, you continue to receive health care benefits as if you were at work. Payments for these health care premiums costs will be automatically deducted from available sick pay.
- If your sick pay is not sufficient to cover your full absence period, you have the option to request that a portion of certain employee-paid benefit premiums be deducted from your VPDI benefit payments.
- Eligible employees continue to accrue vacation while receiving sick pay. Once sick pay exhausts, you will continue to accrue vacation during your medical leave in accordance with current rules for unpaid leaves of absence (see your respective labor agreement, mypgbenefits.com or the Summary of Benefits Handbook for additional details and limitations for vacation accrual during period of leave).

Long-term Disability—Plan IV

PG&E's Long-term Disability (LTD) Plan benefits provide you with income replacement if you become disabled because of an accident or a long-term illness and you are unable to work. The benefit under the new LTD Plan IV, when combined with certain other sources of income, will be equal to 70% of your basic monthly pay.

Who is eligible?

- You must be a regular employee who satisfies the requirements set forth in the LTD Plan Document and Summary of Benefits Handbook in order to be eligible to apply for benefits under the LTD Plan.
- If you are an IBEW- or SEIU-represented employee who has attained regular status and your onset of disability occurred on or after January 1, 2018, your LTD benefits will be determined according to the provisions of Plan IV.

How it works

- In general, you will be considered disabled if, by reason of injury or illness, you are off work twelve (12) months or more within an eighteen (18) month period as a result of disability for the same medical condition and:
 - Are not able to perform the duties of your regular (base) classification; and
 - The company is unable to place you in a position at PG&E for which you are skilled and qualified, that meets your reduced work capacities, and pays at least 70% of your basic wage rate of your base classification at the time of disability.
- You must apply for Long Term Disability with Sedgwick, PG&E's leave of absence and disability administrator.
